

ANNELIESE OLDCASTLE

GRADUATE

anneliese@lazaruslegal.com.au

Although the baby of the group, Anneliese is wise beyond her years. Having studied a double degree in Laws and Arts in the University of New South Wales, Anneliese is on her way to becoming a full-fledged solicitor, with all the bells and whistles that comes with it.

She sees the profession like a marathon, and although she's just starting out, she has an end goal of one day becoming a barrister specialising in Family Law and schooling her former mentors. In the meantime she's pacing herself and enjoying the journey as it comes – something we can all learn and apply in our own ambitions.

She has an insatiable hunger for knowledge. When she's not busy absorbing as much legal wisdom from her mentors between 9 to 5; she spends her downtime absorbing even more information and unleashing it in her creative ventures whether it be programming, classical piano, or writing science fiction stories.

We expect big things from her so don't be surprised if one day she becomes either your advisor or your competitor.
